Why is HMRC investigating?

In the UK we live in an environment whereby taxpayers are responsible for their own tax liabilities. HMRC opens investigations to see if a taxpayer has paid the right amount of tax on a random or selective basis. All this helps the government fill its ever expanding public finance black hole.

Beware of "Connect"!

HMRC now uses a sophisticated database called 'Connect' to start more than 80% of tax enquiries. The system collects data from 30 different sources, including UK and offshore banks, Companies House, the Land Registry, estate agents, the DVLA and other licensing authorities, and social media.

The data can be instantaneously reviewed by more than 3,000 HMRC investigators to produce a financial fingerprint for any taxpayer.

If there are any discrepancies between this data and tax returns or business accounts sent to HMRC, 'Connect' will flag this. A tax enquiry will follow as sure as night follows day. Tax enquiries started from 'Connect' have produced billions of pounds in additional tax over the last few years.

Using 'Connect', HMRC can now target enquiries more accurately than before—but they still get it wrong sometimes. That's why we will always challenge HMRC regarding their reasons for an enquiry when defending clients.
